Microfilm Ca 1895-1914 84 reels 35mm

The collection consists of files from the federal Department of Marine and Fisheries Central Registry records, held at the National Archives of Canada, relating to the development and administration of fisheries in British Columbia. The records were filmed for the University of British Columbia.

Received from the National Archives of Canada under the 1991-1992 Diffusion Program.

WORKING INVENTORY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES GENERAL FILES
University of British Columbia, Government Documents Library (Call number: AW 1 5474)

Compiled by Ira M. Chaikin
January 1987
Revised January 1990

The General files of the Canada Department of Marine and Fisheries (Record Group 23) housed in the Government Documents Library of the University of British Columbia is a collection of material copied from the National Archives of Canada relating to the development and administration of fisheries in British Columbia.

The collection is extensive, comprising 80 reels of microfilm, and covers the period, roughly, from 1895 to 1914. Most earlier records were, unfortunately, destroyed by fire while the latter date appears to be chosen as a cut-off point by those originally assembling the collection.

Researchers using the General Files will find material relating to almost every aspect of the fisheries in British Columbia, from administration to zoology. For those interested in the impact of change on particular groups in the fisheries, such as native Indians, the collection represents a rich and varied source of information.

This inventory was prepared to circumvent the eccentricities of the indices accompanying the collection. In addition to listing the files as they appear on each film, it indicates the general subject matter and the opening and closing dates. Some files, however, are described in more detail than others and, for this reason, this is still very much a working inventory
