Henry Pering Pellew Crease
Legal papers
Originals 1853-1895 7.8 m

Henry Pering Pellew Crease was born 20 August 1823 at Ince Castle, Cornwall, England, the son of Captain Henry Crease, R.N., and Mary Smith Crease. He graduated from Clare College, Cambridge on 29 April 1846 and on 21 May 1846 was admitted to the Honourable Society of the Middle Temple to study law.

From June to September 1847 Crease resided in Smyrna (Izmir), Turkey under medical treatment for a pulmonary infection, then returned to complete his legal studies at the Inns of Court and was called to the degree of the Upper Bar on 8 June 1849. He proceeded to Toronto, Canada in the same year and while there joined an exploring expedition on Lake Superior with the purpose of surveying a proposed ship canal between Lake Huron and Lake Superior. He returned to England in 1851, where he continued to practice law as a conveyancing barrister and managed The Great United Wheal Vor Mines near Helston in Cornwall.

On 27 April 1853, he married Sarah Lindley (daughter of Dr. John Lindley, a renowned British botanist and sister of Lord Nathaniel Lindley, a British judge of some merit who was eventually to become senior judge in Chancery, President of the Court of Appeal and finally Lord of Appeal in Ordinary with a life peerage).

As a result of the commercial depression of 1857, Crease gave up his management of the Cornish mines and returned to Toronto in 1858, but continued on to Victoria. Here he became the first barrister qualified to practice in both Vancouver Island and British Columbia, when he was admitted and enrolled as a Barrister of Her Majesty's Supreme Court of Civil Justice of Vancouver's Island at Victoria by Chief Justice David Cameron and British Columbia by Judge Matthew Baillie Begbie on 18 December 1858. Crease sent for his wife and three daughters (Mary, Susan and Barbara) and they arrived from England in February 1860.

On 2 March Crease took his seat in the House of Assembly (Second Parliament) as a member for Victoria District. He accepted the additional responsibility of Attorney General of the Colony of British Columbia on 14 October 1861, and subsequently resigned his seat in January 1862 when he moved to New Westminster. He was a member of the first legislative council of British Columbia, which sat on 21 January 1864, and he served on the Executive Council to Governor Frederick Seymour. From the unification of the two colonies in 1866 until his elevation to the Bench in 1870, Crease continued to serve as Attorney-General and member of the Legislative Council.

The Crease family had resided in New Westminster from 1862 but at the end of November 1868 they returned to Victoria. During his years on the mainland, Crease also represented the Colonial Securities Company Limited (later the Canada Agency Association) of London and was also elected in 1868 as a Fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute.

Crease was appointed a Puisne Judge on 13 May 1870. In addition to that responsibility, he served as Chairman of the Royal Commission for the Revision of Laws of B.C. preparatory to Confederation with Canada (1870), served with fellow justices Begbie and John Hamilton Cray on the Royal Commission inquiry into the acquisition of Texada Island (1874), and chaired the Royal Commission for Consolidation of the B.C. Statutes (1877). Crease retired from the bench on 21 January 1896. He died 27 November 1905.

The collection of H.P.P. Crease's Legal Papers (contained in 15 transfer cases) consist of indentures, judgments, and other legal documents pertaining to Crease's career as lawyer and later as puisne judge. There is also a small amount of related correspondence. The pages of the documents in the collection have been sequentially numbered (1 to 10134).

The collection was purchased by the Provincial Archives from Lindley Crease and Arthur Douglas Crease at various dates.

See MS-0055, MS-0056, MS-0573 and MS-2879 for related records. MS-2879 has a detailed biography of H.P.P. Crease and his family.
