Mathematical Instrument Works
Charlton, London

S. E.
13th February 1871

Gentlemen,

We have just examined the instruments referred to in your communication of the 10th Instant and find that the repairs actually required greatly exceed those enumerated in the list.

The Instruments appear to have suffered considerably in transit, one box being completely destroyed by some violent concussion.

The aneroid Barometer spoken of is missing.

We have estimated for putting the Instruments into a state of thorough repair.

We are
Yours
